ORDINANCE

AN ACT TO

RELATIVE TO

THE

OF THE

16 Februarii, 1647.

An Ordinance of the Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament, For raising of Twenty thousand pound a Moneth for the Relief of I R E L A N D.

Hereas it hath pleased God of late so to bless and prosper the Forces of this Kingdom in the Kingdom of Ireland, and to give them such Success against the Inhumane and bloody Irish, as that those Rebels are reduced to very great straights, and our Affairs put into such a condition, as gives very great hopes to put that War to a happy and speedy period (if there be now an effectual and vigorous prosecution of the Advantages we have) with seasonable Supplies, the want whereof hath hitherto hindred the compleating of that work, notwithstanding that great sums have been at several times raised and spent for that service: The Lords & Commons in Parliament assembled, taking these things into their consideration, & also how much the honor and interest of this kingdom is concerned, in the reducing of Ireland to the obedience of the Crown of England, and of how absolute and indispenfible necessity it is for the Peace and Tranquility of this Kingdom, that this reduction should be compleat; And considering also in how great want, both of food and clothing those Forces are, And that after so much good service, and such great Success and Victory against the Rebels, themselves are in danger to be lost by Famine and Nakedness, and this Kingdom to lose the fruit of all their service and success, if there be not speedy care taken to provide against these Necessities: Therefore although the said Lords and Commons are very sensible of the great burthens that have been and still are upon this Kingdom in other Taxes and Payments, which the exigency of Affairs by the late Troubles have necessitated to be laid and levied; And that by a late Ordinance there hath been Sixty thousand pounds per mensem charged upon the Kingdom for the Service of England and Ireland, of which notwithstanding, by reason of the said exigencies and necessities, no part can possibly be spared for the Kingdom of Ireland, They have thought fit to Order and Ordain, and be it Ordained by the said Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament, and by the Authority of the same, That for the intents and purposes aforesaid, The sum of Twenty thousand pounds a moneth shall be charged, rated; taxed and levied upon all and every the several Counties, Cities, Towns, Liberties, places and persons hereafter mentioned, according to the several Proportions, Rates and Distributions in this present Ordinance expressed; the same to be paid in monethly to the several Collectors to be appointed for the receiving thereof, and so to continue for the space of six moneths, the moneths to be accounted according to the moneths in the Kalender, and not according to Twenty eight days for the moneth, beginning from the First day of February, 1647.
